

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

RS24877

Section 33-2006, Idaho Code, requires school districts to educate expectant mothers. The section of code is outdated and no longer necessary. School districts are required to educate students residing within the school district's boundaries (with few exceptions), and there is no exception for expectant or delivered mothers. Regardless of a student's parental responsibilities, or their expectation of those responsibilities, the student is required to be educated. The proposed legislation would repeal this section of code.

FISCAL NOTE

There would be no fiscal impact from the proposed legislation. Currently no schools meet the requirements outlined in Section 33-2006, Idaho Code. The program itself has not been funded since Fiscal Year 2010, therefore, removal of Section 33-2006, Idaho Code will result in no fiscal impact.
