Idaho State University

Idaho State University is one of only seven universities in the U.S. to offer programs from technical certificates through graduate and professional degrees. The Carnegie-classified doctoral research and teaching university attracts students to its main campus in Pocatello and locations in Meridian, Idaho Falls, and Twin Falls. Additionally, partnerships have been established across the state and in Anchorage, AK. ISU focuses on serving Idaho students—more than 88% of ISU students are Idaho residents. Since 1966, the University has been Idaho's designated leader for training health care professionals and offers 75% of the state's graduate degrees in the health professions. Idaho State leads the way in health professions, energy, and nuclear research.
